Include Biblical Worldview Study to Homeschool Lesson Plans in 2022/2023

EVANS, GA. — The weather is getting warmer; the trees are blooming; and curriculum planning for the 2022/2023 school year is on your to-do list. Foundation Worldview is encouraging Christian homeschoolers to make sure biblical worldview education is on their radar for the 2022/2023 school year.

"When choosing a Christian homeschooling curriculum, it is important to either choose a curriculum that includes critical worldview analysis or to supplement with a curriculum that can meet this need," Elizabeth Urbanowicz, Founder and CEO of Foundation Worldview, said.

Urbanowicz said there are a lot of publishing companies out there that are good at marketing their curricula as biblical worldview materials but sometimes that's all it is—marketing.

"Don't just trust that a curriculum stems from a biblical worldview simply because those buzzwords are plastered all over a company's website or promo materials," Urbanowicz said. "Call the company and ask if they can give you a few basic examples of how multiplication, literature, or history are taught from a biblical worldview. If their answer involves Bible verses in the textbooks, but lacks any specific examples of how students are critically thinking through the content from a worldview perspective, it would be wise to either choose another company or add in a supplemental curriculum."

No matter where parents are in their homeschooling journey, Foundation Worldview offers supplemental biblical worldview resources. Foundation Worldview has developed curricula for children, beginning at age 4 on up to age 14. This curricula "transforms the way kids think - equipping them to carefully evaluate every idea they encounter and understand the truth of the Christian worldview." Foundation Worldview wants to help parents and educators in the 2022/2023 school year as they help children understand truth.

"Whether you have dreamed of homeschooling your children since you were five or this was a last-minute and unexpected decision, homeschooling provides an incredible opportunity to continue equipping your children to think, love, and act in ways that align with God's design," Urbanowicz said.
